GERMANS EVACUATE WHITE RUSSIAN BASTION OF PINSK; ENEMY ADMITS RUSSIAN BREAK-THROUGH AT GRODNO

Soviet Forces Which Penetrated Grodno, Vital Air and Supply Base, Are Reported Thrown Back by German Reserve Formations.

(By International News Service) LONDON, July 14.—German evacuation of the White Russian bastion of Pinsk was announced today by the Nazi agency DNB.

A Nazi military commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer, at the same time admitted that the Russians twice made what were termed "temporary" break-throughs into the city of Grodno, approximately 60 miles from the German-delineated border of East Prussia.

The Soviet forces which penetrated into Grodno, vital air and supply base and principal bastion at the northern end of the defense line guarding Warsaw, were reported thrown back by German reserve formations.

The German high command communique confirmed the evacuation of Pinsk in its regular communique.

The fortress city is situated on the main line from Gornel to Brest-Litovsk. Situated at the western fringe of the Pripiet marshes, it has been outflanked on both the north and south for some time.

Southward, west of Luck, German divisions were reported to have "systematically detached" themselves from the fighting front.

Germans Throw In All Resources at St. Lo

London.—The German command in Normandy was forced to throw in all its resources at St. Lo to meet a new American onslaught, the Nazi agency DNB reported today in confirming a withdrawal of the main German line at St. Lo and in the La Haye Du Puits area.

"The attacks were stemmed on the whole," DNB said, "but local penetrations were met by a withdrawal of the main German line and the enemy was thus prevented from achieving the desired breakthrough." The DNB agency said that west of the Vire River the Americans attacked at six points from the area of St. Jean De Daye and Le Mesnil-veneron along the roads leading south and southwest.

This Beats "Three Men In A Tub"

(By "The Stroller") There is more than one way to cool off during these July "scorchers," and a first ward guests found a novel way this week.

The little girl in the group was permitted to don her bathing suit, the hose was turned on, and a tub was provided for her on the lawn.

"That water looks nice and cool," commented the grandmother. "Think I'll get my bathing suit." And she hurried to the second floor and commenced "rooting." Sure enough, she found one that would answer the occasion.

And when grandma appeared with her bathing suit of "leander" years encasing her now rounder figure, it made young granddaughter laugh. But there was still more fun in store, for mother decided she was pretty hot, too, and she soon found a suitable costume. Then grandma, not to be outdone, got in on the fun.

No, the tub didn't hold all four at once—it was one at a time as they cooled off while "sailing" over an imaginary "bounding main."

ANDALUSIAN TELLS OF DOWNING A "109"

Last Lt. J. M. Chapman Saw of Messerschmitt It Was Afire

BATTLE IN THE CLOUDS

AN EIGHTH AAF FIGHTER STATION, England, July 14.—"The last I saw of him, he was sort of flopping down, out of control, on fire," reported Lt. John M. Chapman, Mustang pilot from Andalusia, Pa., in describing how he shot down a Messerschmitt 109 to tally his first victory over the Luftwaffe.

"We were on the way out of Germany after escorting bombers to their target," he continued, "when we spotted this guy headed for a large cloud. It was up to me to get him before he could hide. I opened fire at long range, first, hoping to make him change his mind and stay out in the open where we could fight. He kept diving away, though, and I really had to pour on the coal to catch him."

"I finally got within about 300 yards of him, and fired again. The burst hit him in the fuselage. I slid out to the right and squirted him once more, and that did it. Large pieces flew off of him, his engine burst into flames and coolant and oil sprayed all over my plane. Debris and flames seemed to be flying all around me."

The lieutenant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dey P. Chapman, of Andalusia. He entered the air corps on December 19th, 1941.

FIREPOWER SUPERIORITY

A year ago the National Zeitung of Essen said:

"The enemy must win the war, whereas we need only not to lose it."

This remark is interesting in view of the statement of Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, that "Allied firepower in every category is at least four times greater than that of the Germans in the current fighting in Europe. The importance of this fact cannot be overemphasized. It is firepower that wins wars."

Mr. Patterson says that America and Britain have built up a preponderance of firepower in everything from small arms and grenades to heavy artillery, airplane bombs and rockets. This superiority, he says, brings encouragement to Allied troops. He adds:

"Nothing is so heartening to soldiers as to be backed up by superior artillery fire and superior air cover. And nothing will be as disheartening to the Germans as to see themselves so heavily outnumbered in firepower on the field of battle. We will continue to give our troops these enormous quantities of metal and explosives to throw at our enemies, both on the continent and in the Pacific."

The National Zeitung, in asserting that "the enemy must win the war, whereas we need only not to lose it," apparently did not realize that the Allies could build up a superiority of four to one in firepower in so short a period of time.

How not to lose a war when there is this handicap is the problem for the Nazi leaders to solve.

CRUCIAL DAYS

From all fronts comes word that the war of attrition is proceeding apace with every discharge of a gun and a torpedo and every release of a bomb making the end more certain. Nazi leaders admit that the odds against them are frightening and to uphold German morale are resorting to almost daily promises that the war will yet be won by some unannounced means. The Japanese are in a similar mental state, although their curious psychology is not so easily interpreted.

The planes in the air, the ships at sea, the weapons and the power on the land and the most vital of raw materials are steadily shrinking in Axis hands. The sands of the glass are running out and there is nothing the Axis nations can do about it as the overwhelming power of the Allies increases steadily. They may stand staunch for a time along a line or on an island. If so, they are weakened for the next encounter. And always the Allies keep pressing forward with an unmovable persistence that turns the red blood of courage to water and the stout heart to fluttering fear.

Every morning sun brings to the Axis warlords another day of dread, a haunting fear that at some vital area failing hands no longer will be able to grasp the gun and the fatal break-through will occur. The crucial days are here and ever more irresistibly the waves of vengeance beat upon the Axis hordes.

VOLTZ IX TO PLAY FIRST HOME LEAGUE TILT HERE TONIGHT

Gasoline Men Will Oppose Fleetwings in Industrial League Match

ON EDGELY DIAMOND Fleetwings in Third Place and Battle Increases in Interest

The Voltz-Texaco nine will play its first home game of the Trenton Industrial League this evening, meeting Fleetwings on the Edgely diamond. Game is scheduled to begin at 6:15 o'clock.

The Voltz team entered the Trenton circuit this week and opened with a win over Rohm and Haas. The gasoliers have a fine opportunity of finishing in fourth place by entering the playoffs.

Fleetwings is in third place in the circuit, one and one-half games away from second place. Both Fleetwings and the American Steel team gained on the Prison Officers when the Steelers beat the league leaders in a tight game on Dunn field.

It is most likely that Mike DeRisi will hurt for the Wingers against Voltz with either Benny Samsel or Bud Shackleton toing the mound for the Bristol Suburban League first half champs. The remainder of the line-ups will be the same.

Sportsmen's Briefs

For children only - - - the date for the annual fishing contest, sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, is Sunday, August 6th.

It will be held again this year at Silver Lake and will be open to all youngsters under 16 years of age. A five-dollar prize will be given the boy or girl catching the largest fish. Carp, however, will not be eligible for entry.

The contest, which will be under the supervision of the fish committee of the Bristol sportsmen's group, will open at 11 in the morning and run until five in the afternoon.

Attention, all motorists - - - in a plea made before delegates of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs in Morrisville, Monday evening, Warden Roy Stackhouse urged all motorists to drive carefully to avoid killing wild game.

The toll, by car, according to Stackhouse, has been on the increase, particularly by those cars travelling after dark.

Your immediate action required - - - the following is a copy of a letter written by David A. Aylward, president of the National Wildlife Federation:

"There has been introduced into the Congress and referred to the Committee on Commerce a proposed amendment to the Army Engineers' Rivers and Harbors Bill, H. R. 4485. This amendment, if passed, would mark the most forward step ever to be taken in the interests of national wildlife conservation. It would in effect require that the Fish and Wildlife Service make investigations 'to insure the preservation and protection of fishery resources and to develop other biological uses of the waters.'

"The amendment also would provide that 'To achieve these objectives the Fish & Wildlife Service is directed to conduct in advance of the beginning of the actual construction, such surveys and investigations as may be necessary, the cost thereof to constitute a part of the cost of the construction project.'

"It further provides that 'The reports and recommendations submitted by the Secretary of the Interior resulting from the surveys and investigations of the Fish and Wildlife Service shall constitute a part of any and all engineering survey reports and recommendations submitted to the Congress or to any committee thereof by the Secretary of War.'

"The national conservation interests of the United States should take immediate and effective action to inform the Congress of their desires on this important amendment to the Rivers and Harbors Bill."

When you contact your Congressman ask for affirmative action.

Good news - - - following a recent inspection trip of the Canal in Bristol, the Secretary of Forests and Waters has promised to assign a crew of maintenance men to clean up this body of water.

This forward step will not only give local fishermen a "break," but a clean Canal will be a definite asset to our civic pride, not to mention the elimination of a possible health hazard.

Soviet Forces Which Penetrated Grodno, Vital Air and Supply Base, Are Reported Thrown Back by German Reserve Formations.

(By International News Service)

LONDON, July 14—German evacuation of the White Russian bastion of Pinsk was announced today by the Nazi agency DNB.

A Nazi military commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer, at the same time admitted that the Russians twice made what were termed "temporary" break-throughs into the city of Grodno, approximately 50 miles from the German-delineated border of East Prussia.

The Soviet forces which penetrated into Grodno, vital air and supply base and principal bastion at the northern end of the defense line guarding Warsaw, were reported thrown back by German reserve formations.

The German high command communique confirmed the evacuation of Pinsk in its regular communique.

The fortress city is situated on the main line from Gornel to Brest-Litovsk. Situated at the western fringe of the Pripiet marshes, it has been outflanked on both the north and south for some time.

Southward, west of Luck, German divisions were reported to have "systematically detached" themselves from the fighting front.

Raymond Coombs Phones Mother of Improvement

A Bristol seaman, Raymond E. Coombs, 29, who was wounded in the leg by a Japanese aerial bomb, assured his mother by telephone recently that he expects to be enabled to get home by Christmas, he hoping for a leave by that time.

Coombs, an aviation machinist's mate, 3/c, was one of the patients at the Seattle Naval Hospital, who was selected to receive one of the free telephone calls which a Seattle newspaper provides for the sick and wounded members of the armed forces each day.

Coombs had not talked with his mother since he went to sea last September. He assured her that he is improving nicely. One of his legs had been badly shattered by the bomb while he was serving in the Marshalls on the 12th of February. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coombs, Jr., 312 Wilson street, he has a brother, Pvt. John W. Coombs, in the service, he being stationed at an army base in Florida.

Court Appoints Circus Receiver

HARTFORD, Conn., July 14—A Superior Court-appointed receiver took over the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus yesterday as additional damage suits were filed as result of the fire which claimed 162 lives a week ago.

Edward S. Rogin was named by Judge John H. King as receiver, on applications of Julius B. Schatz and Arthur D. Weinstein, Hartford attorneys representing a number of the claimants, who informed the court that "assets are in danger of being wasted."

Attachments against the circus property in suits totaling nearly $700,000 were automatically dissolved with appointment of the receiver, and all claims were placed on an equal basis.

Mayor William H. Mortensen, acting under authority of the Common Council, prepared to name a non-partisan citizen committee to inquire into the performance of city officials, before, during and after the fire.

This Beats "Three Men In A Tub"

(By "The Stroller")
There is more than one way to cool off during these July "scorchers," and a first ward family and their sixth ward guests found a novel way this week.

The little girl in the group was permitted to don her bathing suit, the hose was turned on, and a tub was provided for her on the lawn.

"That water looks nice and cool," commented the grandmother. "Think I'll get my bathing suit." And she hurried to the second floor and commenced "roosting." Sure enough, she found one that would answer the occasion. And when grandma appeared with her bathing suit of "leopard" years encasing her now rounder figure, it made young granddaughters laugh. But there was still more fun in store, for mother decided she was pretty hot, too, and she soon found a suitable costume. Then grandma, not to be outdone, got in on the fun.

No, the tub didn't hold all four at once—it was one at a time as they cooled off while "sailing" over an imaginary "bounding main."

Japs' Top Admiral In Pearl Harbor Attack Dies

PEARL HARBOR, July 14—(INS) Japan's top admiral in the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor was dead today on conquered Saipan Island, once the principal enemy bastion guarding the southern approaches to Japan and now a bristling American stronghold.

He was Vice-Admiral Chugai Nagumo, commander in chief of the Central Pacific area for the Imperial Japanese Navy, who met his death on Saipan, July 7th, the day before Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that organized enemy resistance on the island had been crushed by victorious American forces.

Admiral Nagumo's death, along with that of one Rear Admiral Yano, was disclosed by Admiral Nimitz in a communique which also announced that United States Marines have landed on another island in the Marianas.

BATTLE IN THE CLOUDS

AN EIGHTH AAF FIGHTER STATION, England, July 14—"The last I saw of him, he was sort of flip-flopping down, out of control, on fire," reported Lt. John M. Chapman, Mustang pilot from Andalusia, Pa., in describing how he shot down a Messerschmitt 109 to tally his first victory over the Luftwaffe.

"We were on the way out of Germany after escorting bombers to their target," he continued, "when we spotted this guy headed for a large cloud. It was up to me to get him before he could hide. I opened fire at long range, first, hoping to make him change his mind and stay out in the open where we could fight. He kept diving away, though, and I really had to pour on the coal to catch him."

"I finally got within about 300 yards of him, and fired again. The burst hit him in the fuselage. I slid out to the right and squirted him once more, and that did it. Large pieces flew off of him, his engine burst into flames and coolant and oil sprayed all over my plane. Debris and flames seemed to be flying all around me."

The lieutenant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dey P. Chapman, of Andalusia. He entered the air corps on December 10th, 1941.

FIREPOWER SUPERIORITY

A year ago the National Zeitung of Essen said:

"The enemy must win the war, whereas we need only not to lose it."

This remark is interesting in view of the statement of Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, that "Allied firepower in every category is at least four times greater than that of the Germans in the current fighting in Europe. The importance of this fact cannot be overemphasized. It is firepower that wins wars."

Mr. Patterson says that America and Britain have built up a preponderance of firepower in everything from small arms and grenades to heavy artillery, air-plane bombs and rockets. This superiority, he says, brings encouragement to Allied troops. He adds:

"Nothing is so heartening to soldiers as to be backed up by superior artillery fire and superior air cover. And nothing will be as disheartening to the Germans as to see themselves so heavily out-matched in firepower on the field of battle. We will continue to give our troops these enormous quantities of metal and explosives, to throw at our enemies, both on the continent and in the Pacific."

The National Zeitung, in asserting that "the enemy must win the war, whereas we need only not to lose it," apparently did not realize that the Allies could build up a superiority of four to one in firepower in so short a period of time.

How not to lose a war when there is this handicap is the problem for the Nazi leaders to solve.

CRUCIAL DAYS

From all fronts comes word that the war of attrition is proceeding apace with every discharge of a gun and a torpedo and every release of a bomb making the end more certain. Nazi leaders admit that the odds against them are frightening and to uphold German morale are resorting to almost daily promises that the war will yet be won by some unannounced means. The Japanese are in a similar mental state, although their curious psychology is not so easily interpreted.

The planes in the air, the ships at sea, the weapons and the power on the land and the most vital of raw materials are steadily shrinking in Axis hands. The sands of the glass are running out and there is nothing the Axis nations can do about it as the overwhelming power of the Allies increases steadily. They may stand staunch for a time along a line or on an island. If so, they are weakened for the next encounter. And always the Allies keep pressing forward with an immovable persistence that turns the red blood of courage to water and the stout heart to fluttering fear.

Every morning sun brings to the Axis warlords another day of dread, a haunting fear that at some vital area failing hands no longer will be able to grasp the gun and the fatal break-through will occur. The crucial days are here and ever more irresistibly the waves of vengeance beat upon the Axis hordes.

VOLTZ IX TO PLAY

ON EDGELY DIAMOND
Fleetwings in Third Place and Battle Increases in Interest

The Voltz-Texaco nine will play its first home game of the Trenton Industrial League this evening meeting Fleetwings on the Edgely diamond. Game is scheduled to begin at 6.15 o'clock.

The Voltz team entered the Trenton circuit this week and opened with a win over Rohm and Haas. The gasoliers have a fine opportunity of finishing in fourth place and entering the playoffs.

Fleetwings is in third place in the circuit, one and one-half games away from second place. Both Fleetwings and the American Steel team gained on the Prison Officers when the Steelers beat the league leaders in a night game on Dunn field.

It is most likely that Mike DeRisi will hurt for the Wingers against Voltz with either Benny Samson or Ed Shackleton toeing the mound for the Bristol Suburban League last half champs. The remainder of the line-ups will be the same.

Sportsmen's Briefs
BY JOE ELBERSON

For children only - - the date of the annual fishing contest, sponsored by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, is Sunday, August 6th.

It will be held again this year at Silver Lake and will be open to all youngsters under 16 years of age. A five-dollar prize will be given the boy or girl catching the largest fish. Carp, however, will not be eligible for entry.

The contest, which will be under the supervision of the fish committee of the Bristol sportsmen's group, will open at 11 in the morning and run until five in the afternoon.

Attention, all motorists - - in a plea made before delegates of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs in Morrisville, Monday evening, Warden Roy Stackhouse urged all motorists to drive carefully to avoid killing wild game.

The toll, by car, according to Stackhouse, has been on the increase, particularly by those cars travelling after dark.

Your immediate action required - - the following is a copy of a letter written by David A. Aylward, president of the National Wildlife Federation:

"There has been introduced into the Congress and referred to the Committee on Commerce a proposed amendment to the Army Engineers' Rivers and Harbors Bill, H. R. 4485. This amendment, if passed, would mark the most forward step ever to be taken in the interests of national wildlife conservation. It would in effect require that the Fish and Wildlife Service make investigations to insure the preservation and protection of fishery resources and to develop other biological uses of the waters."

"The amendment also would provide that 'To achieve these objectives the Fish & Wildlife Service is directed to conduct in advance of the beginning of the actual construction, such surveys and investigations as may be necessary, the cost thereof to constitute a part of the cost of the construction project.'"

"It further provides that 'The reports and recommendations submitted by the Secretary of the Interior resulting from the surveys and investigations of the Fish and Wildlife Service shall constitute a part of any and all engineering survey reports and recommendations submitted to the Congress or to any committee thereof by the Secretary of War.'"

"The national conservation interests of the United States should take immediate and effective action to inform the Congress of their desires on this important amendment to the Rivers and Harbors bill."

When you contact your Congressman ask for affirmative action.

Good news - - - following a recent inspection trip of the Canal in Bristol, the Secretary of Forests and Waters has promised to assign a crew of maintenance men to clean up this body of water.

This forward step will not only give local fishermen a "break," but a clean Canal will be a definite asset to our civic pride, not to mention the elimination of a possible health hazard.
